

7 Conclusion

The SRTP will transform Triangle Transit into a system of services that meet the needs of more Triangle residents and address the desire of our customers for more flexible, comfortable, and time- and money-saving transportation choices by focusing on regional express services that connect the many centers of activity in our region. It also places greater emphasis on improving the quality and reliability of our services and ensuring seamless transitions with other transportation providers in the region. We will not only move into a new phase of transit service provision, but also a new phase of how we fund our services as we look for partnerships with local governments and employment institutions to enhance community involvement and investment in transit services. The SRTP begins to address the goals of regional transportation planning efforts that preceded it and supports and carries out the mission of our agency and the guiding principles and goals of the plan as set forth by the Triangle Transit Board of Trustees.
